Introduction

The Indian Council for Cultural Relations (ICCR), an autonomous organization under the Ministry of External Affairs (MEA), was established in 1950 with the primary objectives of establishing, reviving and strengthening cultural relations and mutual understanding between India and other countries.

Its aims, as enunciated in the Memorandum of Association, are:

- To participate in the formulation and implementation of policies and programmes related to India's cultural relations with other countries;
- To foster and strengthen cultural relations and mutual understanding between India and other countries;
- To promote cultural exchanges with other countries and peoples; and
- To establish and develop relations with national and international organizations in the field of culture.

ICCR has been playing an equally important role in the field of education for international students in India. It offers a number of scholarships to foreign nationals to pursue higher studies in Indian Central/State Universities and other recognized institutes of higher education and learning.

Scholarships and welfare of International Students

India has been an attraction for students from abroad since ancient times. Scholarships are an important means to encourage foreign nationals to study in India and learn about various facets of India and its culture, such as ancient Indian systems of medicine, performing arts as also contemporary subjects, such as science, technology, liberal arts, engineering and agriculture. They are also an important vehicle of outreach and create goodwill about India and what it has to offer to the world in cultural and academic fields.

Through its scholarship programme, people from different parts of the world have benefited from ICCR. On the one hand, ICCR has helped various countries in capacity-building by providing scholarships to foreign students in the professional fields like engineering, agriculture, management etc.. On the other hand, it has promoted Indian culture by providing scholarships to pursue courses in Indian dance, music, Yoga, Ayurveda and Indian languages. Many of ICCR Alumni have achieved positions of influence in their respective countries and each ICCR scholar is India's goodwill Ambassador abroad.

Salient Features of ICCR Scholarships

India is known as an education hub attracting international students from all over the world. India's diversity and vibrant history offer a broad range of options for students. With an opportunity to experience both a rich and diverse civilization as well as a rapidly growing country on the cutting edge of economic/technological revolution, studying in India has much to offer, whether it is Engineering, IT, Philosophy or in Indian Culture, etc.

As one of its mandate to promote international exchanges, ICCR's scholarship programmes for international students help to promote cultural and academic exchanges with the world.

ICCR annually awards about 3,900 scholarships under 20 different schemes to foreign nationals from about 190 countries. Amongst these 20 schemes, six are funded by ICCR from its own grant and others are administered on behalf of Ministry of External Affairs and Ministry of AYUSH.

The courses offered for scholarship studies are for Under-graduation, Post-graduation and PhD levels. In any academic year, ICCR supports about 7000 foreign students who study at various Central/State University, Institutes, NITs and Agricultural Institutions etc.

Students have a wide range of options to choose from in terms of courses including for professional courses, like engineering, pharmacy, accountancy, business administration, management, and also culture-related courses such as Indian dance, music, painting, sculpture etc.

To make foreign students feel at home and familiarize them with the Indian way of life, the Council also arranges cultural immersion programmes, orientation programmes for the students and also arranges participation of international students in ICCR's cultural activities including summer and winter camps. Republic Day, Independence Day, Diwali, Holi, etc are also celebrated in conjunction with Zonal & Sub Zonal offices and/or respective Universities/Institutes.

Salient Features of ICCR Scholarships

Scholarship programmes are managed/administered at the local level by ICCR's 5 Zonal and 6 Sub-Zonal offices for ensuring continuous welfare of the foreign students spread across all over India.

Scholarship benefits include stipend (encompassing living allowance, hostel fee/house rent allowance, annual contingency allowance & thesis charges) and tuition/other compulsory fee paid directly to the University/Institutes (excluding refundable fee)

The admissions and scholarships are applied for and managed through ICCR's "Admissions to Alumni (A2A Portal - <http://a2ascholarships.iccr.gov.in/>)".

With the introduction of the A2A portal from the academic year 2018-19, ICCR scholarship programmes are not only digitized for aspiring foreign students but also have become convenient, offering wide choices to the students and linking the applicants, Universities/Institutes, Indian Missions and ICCR/its Zonal & Sub Zonal offices seamlessly.

The portal contains all relevant information regarding ICCR-sponsored scholarship schemes and other information like list/details of the Indian Universities/Institutes, courses offered by them and guidelines of scholarship schemes.

To automate the entire manual work process of ICCR's scholarship division, ICCR has launched an application, 'Gyan_Setu- connecting Culture through Knowledge' on 6 February 2023.

ICCR Alumni Award

India has always been an attractive destination for higher education for foreign students and scholars to enrich their academic excellence. Since Independence, Government of India has always welcomed foreign students to study in India. ICCR has an extensive scholarship programme for foreign students. It annually disburses large number of scholarships to students from countries across the world to pursue academic and other courses in Indian performing/visual arts at under-graduate, post-graduate and research levels in Indian institutions. Foreign students who studied in India are India's goodwill ambassadors and over a period of time, have achieved influential positions in their respective countries. Recognizing the achievements of foreign students who studied in India, Distinguished Alumni Award was instituted by ICCR in 2015 to recognize ICCR Alumni "who have made significant achievements in his/her field and/or have made outstanding contribution to the promotion of understanding, goodwill and friendship between India and their country". "I travelled to Kerala for the first time in 2018, but for me all States of India are like my second home so I was sure I will like it to stay and study in the University of Kerala.

ICCR provides a good opportunity to study and develop both personally and professionally for all students under its scholarship schemes. It broadens our personal view and educates us on many events and situations happening in the world and creates learning and developing environment for all international students in India.

Stay in Kerala under ICCR scholarship gave me opportunity to apply my capacity and develop my skills in academic stream. I found out my abilities and participated in various academic and cultural programs which ICCR arranged for us as international students. As an international student in India we always experience the rich blend of hospitality and high respect to global community in the University of Kerala in all academic levels like bachelor, Master or PhD candidates.

ICCR provides us with wide scope of activities, World Theatre Day, World Yoga Day, and many more and it cares for our wellbeing. Thanks to ICCR because during stay in Kerala we feel like at home."

"During my stay in Goa as a Master's student under ICCR Scholarship, life was really very nice and interesting. I particularly experienced an interesting culture where people from different environment live peacefully and respect each other regardless of their differences. Most importantly, I found Goa University to be a lovely educational institution. I enjoyed the way the lecturers interact with all students without any exception and the latter expressed themselves a mutual cooperation in their community. This helped me get wonderful skills and knowledge through learning and made me not to feel alone in a foreign country. Finally, the ICCR international desk care so much about international students to make sure every international student is safe and getting a healthy life."

"India is one of among oldest countries in the world that has its own prominent identity. It is not only in this modern day that people go to India and pursue their study. Even for centuries ago, people from various countries came along and pursue their study at Nalanda University, one of the oldest universities in the world. I was one of the lucky scholars from Indonesia that was granted the chance to study in India through the General Scholarship Scheme by Indian Council for Cultural Relations for Post Graduate Course. I have a special curiosity about India since childhood that drove me to apply for this scholarship. The study which was conducted in English medium makes every student from any part of the world easily adapt with the learning environment. The availability of textbooks from various reputable publishers will boost our knowledge and make the study easier. ICCR Regional Director where I studied as well as the International Advisor are amazing and great personalities. They will always be there as our core supporter in any difficult situations that we can't handle all alone. And they treat us just like their family. As a newcomer, we may face challenges. But we need to build a mentality that we must finish what we started beautifully and successfully. And if the scholars keep that principle in their mind, we will have a clear vision and mission during the stay of study duration there and we can complete the course successfully and with good marks. India has 28 States and 8 Union Territories that we can make our own choice of stay destination to pursue the study. And in between the stay, we can travel and visit places that we might have seen in movies or on social media. So, enjoy the stay for the new students, work smart and hard for the study. May the success and happiness be yours."

"I'm a student from Palestine, pursuing Masters in Mass Communication from Tezpur Central University, Tezpur, Assam. My experience as an international student has, overall, been positive; I have changed in ways I would never have imagined. I am from Palestine, and India, to say the least is a very different environment than where I used to live. I have come to India for higher studies through an ICCR scholarship (Indian Council for Cultural Relations), but experiencing a new culture, new food habits and making new friends – all these things have summed up into something significant in my life and memory which makes me no longer feel like a stranger. I have celebrated Indian festivals such as Holi and Saraswati Puja. During my time here, I have picked up a little bit of the Assamese language and learned how to speak it; I have made lifelong friends with unforgettable memories. I learned to cook some Assamese dishes, participated in such activities as the wildlife safari in Nameri national park, and learned endless things about Hinduism and other dynamic Indian religions and culture.

As an international student at Tezpur University, I grew to be proud of my University, and I truly feel like I am a part of this community. Education in India is not bound to a classroom; ICCR gave me an opportunity to travel to different places. This chance allowed me to visit some places of South India. I explored the villages in different places of India and experienced their way of living. This trip let me enjoy the natural beauty of India; with my friends, I visited places like Sikkim, Shillong, Cherrapunjee, Tezpur, Bangalore and many more. Every place has its own natural beauty and unique culture. This trip not only let me enjoy the natural beauty of India, but also helped me to make some friends with unforgettable memories.

Last but not least, the moment I had been waiting for came true. This is a great opportunity to extend my warmest appreciation to India and to the ICCR for allowing me to be part of this wonderful community. Honestly, India is a great place to study and I really like India, so I am contemplating to continue further advanced study here. I can hardly wait to perceive what different encounters and experiences are coming up for me in the coming months."

"I have completed my M.Sc in Analytical Chemistry from K.J Somaiya College of Science and Commerce. I would like to write a word of thanks for all the tireless work that you have given us at your capacity as a person and at the level of the ICCR.

As one of the beneficiaries of ICCR Scholarship, I would like to thank the ICCR and the Government of India for their generous, financial support towards my higher education.

During my two years in India I have learned many things from India that have sharpened my world view and will help me in the whole journey of my life. All the spheres of life have been changed and I will never forget what India has added to my life and believe that this will be my second home and will not hesitate to come back here when there is need.

Conclusively, this opportunity has allowed me to make my goals and dream a reality. I hope in turn one day I will be able to give back and help others get their dreams and goals a reality. Thank you very much."

"I cannot but say a very big thank you to the Indian Council for Cultural Relations for the privilege to be one of the beneficiaries of the African Scholarship scheme. Thanks to ICCR a boy with no proper personal road map for his life became someone whom his colleagues come to for guidance on how to get things done properly.

My stay in India has been unique and unforgettable because I got to experience and see things from a different perspective; India lives up to the title "Incredible India" like they say, and I must say India is home anytime, any day!

Academically, it was quite challenging at the beginning but it was just a reminder that I can always step up my game which has helped me to improve so much. Getting trained as an engineer in India has given me the opportunity to stand out among my peers and it has also improved my insight. I hope to apply this knowledge into making Africa a better continent."

"I had had a mistaken idea about India before getting the ICCR scholarship, without which I would not come to India and I would not complete my higher studies. To me, India was the country of Amitabh Bachchan and Shahrukh Khan and nothing else. However, having the chance to come to India was like giving some blind fellow eyes to take a real look at what there is. I came to know what India is for real. Yes, India is the country of movies, dancing, singing, and arts, but also, it is the country of fast development, technology, diversity, and humanity. Further, nothing is more significant than giving a person the chance to have a better career, a better job, and a better income. All are possible now with the knowledge and skills I got under the generous sponsorship of the ICCR. I believe that all the ICCR students and scholars, just like myself, will always be thankful to the ICCR for giving them the chance to learn, improve, and know this great future-leading country in a better way. I love the ICCR; I love India."

My journey in India began 2016, from day one I was fascinated by the large population, for the 1st time in my life I was surrounded by so many people, as my journey continued I was adapting to the new lifestyle and society, I learnt the importance of education in shaping a prosperous society through the teachings of Jawaharlal Nehru and B. R Ambedkar. I also noticed that India is a country that is diverse and rich in culture, through events organized by ICCR- Hyderabad. I was exposed to some of the cultures which includes the likes of Kuchipudi and Kathak dance and the universal humanitarian culture inspired by Mahatma Gandhi, the astonishing food culture and various Indian cuisines most famously briyani. Those with similar experience will always say Incredible India."

"I am from Zambia. I'm a recent graduate of Bachelor of Technology in Electrical Engineering from Delhi Technological University in National Capital of Delhi.

I came to India in 2018 under the Indian Council for Cultural Relations (ICCR) scholarship. I was very ecstatic about the idea of learning from some of the greatest minds in the world. The very idea of pursuing my undergraduate studies in India enthused in me a great sense of motivation to achieve my goals. India is widely known as a centre of great scientific innovations, hence my interest to study Bachelor of Technology in Electrical Engineering at a University as prestigious as Delhi Technological University. I got to meet people from different parts of the world and ideas were exchanged on how we all view the world. Academically, it was quite challenging at first due to different education system but with time and help from my peers and the faculty members, I adapted to the system. The administration was very helpful and co-operative during my time at the University.

My entire stay in India has been eye opening and I have learnt a lot of things both in the academic and cultural aspect. It was so nice getting to know and understand India's rich culture. The spices, Chicken Tikka, Chole Bhature not forgetting the famous chapati all form part of India's basic food consumption. India boasts of historical features from the India gate of New Delhi to the Taj Mahal of Agra.

Having graduated in Electrical Engineering, my plan is to now focus on my masters in renewable energy. I believe we can harness renewable sources of energy to sustain our ever growing world population. India has been a good stepping stone and it will help me achieve my desired goal. Not only that, the network I've created here will be very fundamental to my future endeavors."

"Namaste, I am from Uganda the Pearl of Africa. I am a graduating student from Delhi Technological University and I've been pursuing a Master's Degree of Business Administration specializing in Business Analytics. I started this course in September 2020 during the pandemic and finalized it in 2022. I must say that Delhi Technological University is a great University that has given me exposure to various walks of life but most importantly in the field of academia. This has not only instilled more confidence in me but also put me on the competitive edge as far as the career opportunities are concerned. It is from this basis that I got a dream of pursuing further studies on a PhD level as my next immediate plan.

Generally, life in India has been challenging and extremely interesting as well. This is due to its unique climate changes and the differences in culture, religion, language barrier etc. Living in India during my studies has given exposure on its economic and political strategies that countries in Africa need to benchmark to fasten their economic development.

I appreciate India's embracement of technology, great medical facilities and quality education. I am indeed proud for a life well lived and deserving in this part of the world. Since my success has been earned, it's now time to explore and utilize opportunities there is. Dhanyavaad India."

My parents gave me wings, taught me to fly and ICCR provided me sky, with no limits...

To go, to say goodbye is always hard, it is harder when you leave a family behind. ICCR is the family that I am leaving behind in my second home India. Role of ICCR in the journey of the achievement of the set goals of a foreign student is remarkable. ICCR is not a mere an organization providing financial support for educational purposes, ICCR is a strong pillar of each foreigner traveling behind the dreams of success and illumination. Each member of the ICCR family, stands for motivating, encouraging, comforting, securing, advising throughout stay and education in India.

I express my gratitude to the Embassy of India in Armenia for introducing ICCR and providing me with the opportunity to continue my education and discover the beauty of India.

India is the land which carries one of the earliest history of mankind. The land of great teachings, the land of Ganges, Buddha, the land which faced conquests from abroad and the settlement of Dutch, Portuguese, English and French. The country was and is a gem on Earth with its unique ability of uniting its nation. India's biggest triumph is being true to the values of its own land and religious teachings through centuries. The secret of uniting such a diverse nation is tolerance, love and respect of others' way of life. The country has a beautiful harmonization for every being of its land. This is the place where every teaching is directed to the art of balancing. From insects to plants, from fishes to birds, from moon to sun, from rain to wind, from human to animal every single aspect of the planet has its own significance and importance in this country.

Going ahead in life, being exposed to a change is a natural phenomenon, however there are some changes that are shaping our personality and life; hence I am leaving with the most valuable treasures of India which are wisdom, tolerance, kindness, respect, mindfulness etc. Qualities gained in India, with the help of ICCR are life changing.

I fold my hands and bow my head with the immense respect for everyone at the ICCR and Embassy of India in Armenia for their hard work and care I have been provided during years of my education."

I am writing to share my reflections on the two-year journey I embarked upon while pursuing my Master's in Development Communication at Gujarat University.

Even though it has been a few years, it feels like yesterday that I made an important decision in my life - coming to Gujarat for my higher studies. Despite initial uncertainties about the food culture, language, and various aspects, my choice of Gujarat University over universities in the UK and Thailand, where I was already accepted, has proven to be one of the most rewarding decisions of my life. I have transformed, personally and professionally. And in this transformation, ICCR has played an instrumental role. I owe my deepest gratitude to ICCR, for giving me this opportunity where I could exercise my talent and skills along with academic knowledge. They have also been very kind and helpful and always one call away when we have had problems while living in India.

Whenever I think about my academic journey in Gujarat, I remember Gujarat University, especially the Department of Communication and Journalism. My time spent in this department transcended the academic realm, evolving into a journey of life lessons that will forever remain with me. As a newcomer to Gujarat, I held preconceived notions about the region, assuming all Gujaratis were vegetarians in a dry state. However, my experience during the Masters in Development Communication program, which involved visits to various districts of Gujarat such as Patan, Surendranagar, the tribal belt in Mahisagar, and parts of rural Ahmedabad for a project, shattered these preconceptions. I discovered the rich diversity in food habits, culture, and traditions. I also witnessed the warm and welcoming nature of people whose cultures shifted every few kilometers. These interactions were not only priceless but also unforgettable.

I also cherish the invaluable friendships formed during my time in Gujarat. Through ICCR, I have not only built a network but also created bonds that transcend continents. I can now proudly declare that I have a home in Uganda, Lesotho, Indonesia, and most significantly, in India - a testament to the strength of the relationships built through respect, friendship, and gratitude. Such a profound connection would not have been possible without ICCR.
