

ICCR ARRANGED EXIT-ENGAGEMENT-EVENING PROGRAM TO BID FAREWELL TO ITS SCHOLARS

The Indian Council for Cultural Relations' initiative, the Exit Engagement Evenings (E-3), was recently hosted in Pune, Delhi, and Ahmedabad. With around 7,000 ICCR scholars pursuing a diverse array of educational streams across India, the E-3 programs celebrate the remarkable academic achievements of the students under the council's prestigious scholarship schemes.

Beyond merely recognizing their academic success, Exit Engagement Evenings (E-3) aspire to provide scholars with invaluable insights into ongoing collaboration opportunities. These gatherings explore potential partnerships in culture, tourism, textiles, yoga, Ayurveda, and crafts, which the students can cultivate upon returning to their home countries.

These events were characterized by the distribution of alumni cards to the scholars and featured vibrant cultural performances by both the outgoing foreign students and local Indian artists. The celebrations created a festive atmosphere, showcasing the rich cross-cultural exchanges that were nurtured during the students' time in India. These celebrations signify not just an academic milestone but also a profound bond between the scholars and India.
